GAMEPLAY

CLOCK

This is a speedy game of chance in which you can use any category to win.

STEP 1

PLAYER 2

Remove the duplicates and bonuses. Shuffle the pack and then deal 12 cards face down in a circle so that your gaming area looks like a clock.

Player 1 calls out any one of the five categories, for example Intelligence. He then turns over the card at 12 o'clock.

COMBAT

STEP 2

Player 2 then turns over the card at 1 o'clock. If the Intelligence rating is lower, then Player 1 wins and claims both cards. If it's higher, then Player 2 claims them.

Whoever wins gets to choose the next category before turning over the card at 2 o'clock.

REMEMBER!

Every second counts!
Don't think too hard about which category to choose –
just shout it out!

PLAYER 2
LOSES!

STEP 3

Combat continues around the clock until all the cards have been snapped up. The player with the most cards at the end wins.

Want to make the battles more exciting? Try beating the clock. See if you can both complete the game in just one minute!

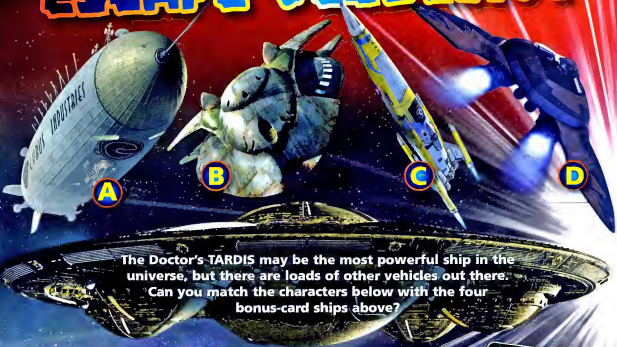

BACK IN TIME!

Why not try an anti-clockwise game,
starting at 12 o'clock
and ending at 1 o'clock?

DALEK WARS

The battle for the planet Graelliscy was long and exhausting with thousands of human casualties.

FLOATING FORTRESS

From 'Wars at the Ends of the Worlds' by R K Datto

Humans first settled on Graelliscy at the end of the 45th century, but it took them years to adapt to this unusual planet. Beautiful cities on floating islands were built in the skies, making the most of the planet's unusual gravitational pull. Everything floated in the air during the summer, but gravity would increase in the winter, pulling the islands towards the ground.

However, this was not the greatest challenge the inhabitants faced. In early 4826, they became the latest victims of the Daleks' unending march through the universe. An airborne attack was the natural approach, but they underestimated the sky cities' defences. The Daleks found themselves at the receiving end of gun towers that picked them off with ease.

THE ANSWERS

After regrouping and assessing the situation further, the Daleks realised their only chance was to take out the central control station. They attacked again, focusing all their fire on the main island, trying to break through its defensive shield. They fought long and hard, finally bringing down the power source for the shields. It was then that the massacre truly started. The Daleks exterminated everyone in sight and within days they had won.
